OLD CLAIBORNE CEMETERY – located in Claiborne Alabama -Transcribed by Chere Lee, March 2003

Tombstone Records of an Old Cemetery at Claiborne, Alabama
by Major Harry A. Davis, Washington D.C.

The following records constitute all that is left of this cemetery. As I recall this cemetery in 1892-1893, it was more extensive and more complete than these records indicate. It is located on sloping ground near the Alabama River at Claiborne. On my visit to it in 1925 it was very apparent that many graves had disappeared, as well as the stones, owing to many large washouts by the elements, and no doubt many of the stones were removed by marauders and used for other purposes. My time was limited but I succeeded in interesting Mrs. William Deer, who resides at Claiborne, and who copied the remaining stones for me.

Some information concerning Claiborne, Alabama, will make these records more appreciated. Claiborne is located on the Alabama River about midway between Selma and Mobile. During the period of 1817 to 1830 it was a center thru which practically all immigrants passed, and boasted of a population of some 2,500 souls, a larger population than either of the early capitals, St. Stephens or Catawba. It was a shipping center for a very large territory. Claiborne of today is a relict of the past, nothing remains of its former splendor or prosperity. The only old home standing in 1925 was the "Torrey Place" and it was abandoned and in the last stages of dilapidation.
